Message from the MSA President

The twelfth annual conference of the Modernist Studies Association brings us from Eastern Canada (MSA 2009) to its West Coast, and once again we are grateful to our Canadian hosts for offering us a beautiful gathering space on comparatively short notice. This was the year, some of you may remember, when we had planned to be in New Zealand. When the cost proved too high and the distance too great for the majority of our members, Stephen Ross from the University of Victoria agreed to undertake the enormous task of hosting this year's annual conference. I believe I speak on behalf of the organization when I say how grateful we are to Stephen for providing us with a setting that, while vastly different from New Zealand, is equally glorious.

Modernist Networks is an apt metaphor for the annual conference, connecting as it does modernist scholars and students of modernism from around the world. The theme of Modernist Networks crisscrosses this year's program, from explicit invocations—such as a seminar and a roundtable on Modernist Networks—to various permutations: e.g., Avant-garde Networks, Broken Networks, Forgotten Networks, Exilic Networks, Nonhuman Networks, and Networked Selves. This program was thoughtfully and assiduously assembled by the MSA Program Committee, chaired by Rebecca Walkowitz. Along with her fellow committee members, Eric Hayot and Christopher Bush, Rebecca worked with local organizers Emile de Rosnay and Allan Antliff and board members to bring together an exciting range of panels, seminars, and roundtables, 127 in all, many intersecting with the network theme.

Important as the program is to making the conference an event we look forward to all year, the sometimes tedious but indispensable details of contracts and schedules, registration and receptions, room assignments and AV requests, name tags and coffee breaks—everything that makes the conference run smoothly but that we often take for granted—are every bit as important. For their year-long attention to our needs and comfort at this conference, I would like to thank the many colleagues and students who have assisted Stephen Ross, especially Tara Thomson, Luke Carson, James Gifford, Helga Thorson, and Lincoln Shlensky, as well as the staff of the Empress and the Conference Centre: Trista Zamany, Sarah Kennedy, Alex Long and Angela Gatari.

Thanks also to MSA webmaster, Matt Huculak, for his help in designing the MSA XII conference website, and for the additions he has made to the MSA website that will benefit all members. We now have job openings and book publications in modernist studies posted on the website. Check it out at <http://msa.press.jhu.edu/>.

And one more expression of appreciation. This year marks the end of Cassandra Laity's ten-year service as the MSA editor for Modernism/Modernity. The success of Cassandra's tenure as editor is evident in "The September Issue" of the journal, one that many of us await as eagerly each year as some people do the September Vogue. Cassandra has published some of the most respected and most cited articles in the journal, and it is with much gratitude that we honor her contribution to modernist scholarship, as editor and writer. Please join me in thanking Cassandra for her prodigious efforts on behalf of the MSA and for her enlightened editorial vision for the expanding field of modernist studies. You will recognize her readily by her signature hat.

Let me end by raising a virtual martini glass and toasting your arrival (or pending arrival) in beautiful Victoria. I wish you good networking, and safe travels. And I hope you will join us in Buffalo for the 2011 conference, Las Vegas for 2012, and Brighton for 2013.

Pamela L. Caughie
MSA President

A Note from the Local Organizers

Welcome to MSA12: Modernist Networks. Our emphasis on networks in the conference theme this year has yielded an extraordinarily strong crop of contributions that really demonstrate the interconnectedness of modernism as a global phenomenon. We have sessions that treat of modernism itself as a global network, of overt and covert networks of modernist works, of networks among modernist artists, of the ways in which modernism is networked increasingly today, and of the critical and cultural networks that have sustained modernism through the twentieth and into the twenty-first centuries. On this point, we are trying something a bit different this year: in addition to two single-speaker Keynotes, we have a Keynote Round Table on the question, "How is Modernism Global?"

With this global view in mind, we have tried to make this year's MSA the greenest ever, in hopes also that future MSA conferences will outdo us: there are no free book bags with conference packs, though those who still want a memento can purchase them at cost; the Conference Program is available in both print and electronic formats – we hope everyone will eventually opt for the e-version (nearly 60% of you did this year, saving approximately 16,000 pieces of paper); and we designated a carbon-offset vendor for those of you who wished to buy credits against the inevitable pollution of air travel.

These measures have also saved the conference some money, allowing us to fund an abundance of extra-curricular activities, including two plays (Mina Loy's The Pamperers and an excerpt of Sasha Colby's HD: A Life), two literary salon evenings at Emily Carr House, a screening of Ernst Lubitsch's I Don't Want to be a Man, and a poetry reading. We are grateful to Allana Lindgren and Sheila Rabillard for organizing the plays, to Helga Thorson for organizing the literary salon evenings and the film screening, and to Lesley Wheeler for organizing the poetry reading.

Given the near-apocalyptic financial situations of so many universities today, it is truly remarkable that we have such a long list of sponsors who generously supported our (at times perverse) faith in this conference.

Our chief financial supporters are the University of Victoria department of English, Simon Fraser University's World Literature Program, and the Johns Hopkins University Press. We have also benefited from the University of Victoria's Work Study program, which helped pay for crucial student assistance. The Beck Trust at the University of Victoria made Astradur Eysteinnsson's visit possible, the Lansdowne Short-Term Visitor program brought us Patricia Leighton, the O'Neill Fund for the Study of Irish Literature funded Maud Ellmann's visit, and the Shastri Indo-Canadian Institute provided support for Udaya Kumar's flight. The offices of the Vice-President Academic, the Vice-President Research, and the deans of Humanities, Fine Arts, and Graduate Studies at the University of Victoria also provided essential funding. Fairleigh Dickinson University's new Vancouver campus is another key supporter of the conference, as are the University of Victoria's McPherson Library and the department of Germanic and Slavic Studies, Routledge's ABES series, and the department of English and dean of Arts at the University of British Columbia.

We would like to thank Katharine Waring and Jenny Jessa in the department of English for administrative assistance. Sarah Kennedy, Carmelle Whitely, and Trista Zamany at the Fairmont Empress have been enormously helpful, as have Alex Long and Angela Gatari at the Victoria Conference Centre. Kimberly Crosswell virtually donated her design for the poster and postcard. Tara Thomson designed the program; J. Matthew Huculak and Leif Baradoy produced electronic versions of it for various platforms; Timothy Golub and Julian Gunn made the online version into the rich, dynamic environment you have now.

We wish also to acknowledge the intense and close work done by the MSA Program Committee (Rebecca Walkowitz, Chair; Allan Antliff, Christopher Bush, Pamela Caughie, Eric Hayot, Mark Morrisson, and Emile de Rosnay). Of especially crucial assistance (and not already mentioned) on the Local Organizing Committee are Luke Carson, who organized the exhibition; Nicholas Bradley, who kept us green; Michael Nowlin, who prepared our conference grant application; and Lincoln Shlensky, Megan Swift, and Marina Bettaglio, who secured the support of so many local businesses. Our many student volunteers – too many to name – deserve great thanks (and get free t-shirts!) for their hard work. Tom Bowler of Sharp's Audio-Visual has been extremely helpful and provided us with outstanding technical support throughout. Duncan Gidney is providing the additional technical support needed to make the keynote talks available as a podcast after the conference.

Sean Latham, Mark Morrisson, and Pamela Caughie – the MSA's Past President, First Vice President, and President, respectively – have been indispensable in our planning and preparations, and we'd like to thank them formally as well as all those times we did so over email in the last year or so. Melba Cuddy-Keane was instrumental in convincing us to take this on in the first place – for which she receives alternately thanks and curses, depending on how things are going.

Finally, there is no hyperbole involved when I say that this conference simply would not have taken place were it not for the incredible energy, organizational ability, unfailing kindness, and sharp intelligence of our Graduate Conference Assistant, Tara Thomson. If you see Tara around, say hi and thank you – she's done more work than we could pay her for, and if you're having a good time it's likely her doing. (If something's gone wrong, it was probably on my list.) Tara's dissertation, nearing completion now, deals with the everyday in Mansfield, Woolf, and Richardson. She'll be looking for a job in two years' time. Please keep her in mind, and recall that the talents that made her a great conference assistant will make her an outstanding colleague.

If we've forgotten to thank anyone, it's not because we're not grateful, but because we're simply overwhelmed. Thanks to everyone who helped make the conference a reality, and thank you to all those of you made the trek to the edge of the world to join us.

Klahowya!

Stephen Ross, for
The Local Organizing Committee

Featured Speakers

Patricia Leighton

Duke University

Patricia Leighton received her Ph.D. from Rutgers University. She is author of Re-Ordering the Universe: Picasso and Anarchism, 1897-1914 (Princeton University Press 1989) and Modernism, Anarchism and Its Parisian Audiences, 1900-1914 (forthcoming University of Chicago Press 2011), and, co-authored with Mark Antliff, A Cubism Reader: Documents and Criticism, 1906-1914 (University of Chicago Press, 2008) and Cubism and Culture (Thames & Hudson 2001 [Cubisme et culture 2002]). Her field of research is late nineteenth-/early twentieth-century art and politics. In her research and teaching, she is interested in the relationship between visual culture and the politics of both representation and interpretation.

As this talk will take place on the evening of Armistice Day, it will be a public lecture as well as an MSA keynote talk. Please arrive early for seating.

Astradur Eysteinnsson

University of Iceland

Astradur Eysteinnsson studied at the University of Iceland (BA), University of Warwick, England (MA), University of Cologne, Germany, and the University of Iowa, where he received his Ph.D in Comparative Literature. He is professor of Comparative Literature and, since 2008, Dean of Humanities at the University of Iceland in Reykjavik. In his research he has looked at several aspects of modernism and (post)modernity, from literary and cultural perspectives. He has also worked extensively in translation studies and is a practicing translator (he has for instance co-translated several works of Franz Kafka into Icelandic). He is the author of The Concept of Modernism (Cornell UP 1990), Tvimaeli (on translation and translation studies, University of Iceland Press 1996), and Umbrot (on literature and modernity, University of Iceland Press 1999). He is the co-editor (with Daniel Weissbort) of Translation – Theory and Practice: A Historical Reader (Oxford UP 2006) and (with Vivian Liska) Modernism (2 vols., ICLA/John Benjamins 2007).

Maud Ellmann

University of Chicago

Maud Ellmann received her Ph.D. from St. Anne's College, Oxford University. Her research interests focus on locating Irish experiences in theoretical and comparative contexts. Before coming to Notre Dame, she was a Reader in Modern Literature at Cambridge University. Her recent book Elizabeth Bowen: The Shadow across the Page (Edinburgh University Press, 2003) received the British Council Prize for book of the year in English Studies. Ellmann is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts and has held a number of significant fellowships, including awards from Harvard (Mellon), Guggenheim, ACLS, Newberry, the Henry Ransom Center at the University of Texas, and the National Humanities Center. In addition to editing Bram Stoker's Dracula (Oxford University Press, 1996), she has authored Psychoanalytic Literary Criticism (Longman, 1994), The Hunger Artists: Starving, Writing and Imprisonment (Harvard University Press, 1993), and The Poetics of Impersonality: T. S. Eliot and Ezra Pound (Harvard University Press, 1987).

Udaya Kumar

University of Delhi

Udaya Kumar is a Professor of English at the University of Delhi. He is the author of The Joycean Labyrinth: Repetition, Time and Tradition in Ulysses (Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1991) and several articles on literary and cultural theory, modern Indian literature, and autobiographical writing. Professor Kumar was a Fellow at the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Professor of Cultural Studies at the Centre for Studies in Social Sciences, and Leverhulme Visiting Professor at Newcastle University, U.K. He is currently completing a book on the history of self-articulation in modern Malayalam writing.

Shu-Mei Shih

University of California, Los Angeles

Shu-Mei Shih is a Professor of Asian Languages and Cultures at the University of California, Los Angeles. She is a scholar of comparative literature with expertise and interest in Chinese, Sinophone, and Asian American literatures. Professor Shih's first book was The Lure of the Modern: Writing Modernism in Semicolonial China, 1917-1937 (University of California Press, 2001). Her second book, Visuality and Identity: Sinophone Articulations across the Pacific (University of California Press, 2007), theorizes and substantiates the new category of the Sinophone as the culture and literature of peoples speaking and writing different Chinese languages outside China. Professor Shih also co-edited the book Minor Transnationalism (2005) and has edited or co-edited special issues of Postcolonial Studies, Chung-Wai Literary Monthly, and PMLA. Her current projects include a co-edited book, Creolization of Theory, and two monographs, tentatively titled Trialectics: A book of Cross-cultural Questions and The Cultures of Postsocialism in China.

Chana Kronfeld

University of California, Berkeley

Chana Kronfeld is a Professor of Hebrew and Comparative Literature at the University of California, Berkeley. She is the author of On the Margins of Modernism: Decentering Literary Dynamics (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1996), which won the MLA Scaglione Prize in 1998 for Best Book in Comparative Literary Studies. She has published many articles in scholarly journals and has also won awards from the National Endowment for the Arts and other organizations for her translations and co-translations of literary works. Professor Kronfeld is preparing a monograph for publication, titled The Full Severity of Compassion: The Poetry of Yehuda Amichai and a collection of essays, in collaboration with graduate students, titled Rewriting the Land as Woman.

Ken Seigneurie

Simon Fraser University

Ken Seigneurie is an Associate Professor and Director of the World Literature Program at Simon Fraser University. He researches modern Arabic, French and British fiction, literary theory and the history of humanist thought. His edited volume, Crisis and Memory: The Representation of Space in Modern Levantine Narrative, was published in 2003. Dr. Seigneurie has published numerous articles and chapters on Arabic Literature and he is currently completing a book-length manuscript entitled "A Culture in Ruins: Elegiac Humanism in Wartime and Postwar Lebanon."

Glen Willmott

Queen's University

Glenn Willmott is a Professor of English at Queen's University, where he teaches courses on modernism, on comics, and on Canadian literature. His most recent book, Modern Animalism: Habitats of Scarcity and Wealth in Comics and Literature, will be published by University of Toronto Press in 2011. Other books include Modernist Goods: Primitivism, the Market, and the Gift (UTP, 2008), Unreal Country: Modernity in the Canadian Novel in English (McGill-Queens UP, 2002), and McLuhan, or Modernism in Reverse (UTP, 1996). Other publications include chapters on economic and anthropological approaches to modernism in Disciplining Modernism (ed. Pamela Caughie, 2009) and Modernism and Theory (ed. Stephen Ross, 2009), and on digital media in Fluid Screens, Expanded Cinema (ed. Janine Marchessault and Susan Lord, 2007); and the articles "Cat People," forthcoming in Modernism/Modernity (2010), and "Modernism and Aboriginal Modernity: The Appropriation of Products of West Coast Native Heritage as National Goods," in Essays on Canadian Writing (2004).

The British Association for Modernist Studies (BAMS) is an organisation designed to bring together the work of all those interested in modernism in the UK. BAMS exists to provide a means of communication between individuals and already existing groups working in modernist studies across Britain, and across all relevant disciplines, and to make connections with modernists abroad. It aims to support and develop education and training in modernist studies, particularly for postgraduates. Registration is free and open to all. The inaugural BAMS conference, "On or about December 1910 human character changed": Centenary reflections and contemporary debates: modernism and beyond', will take place at the University of Glasgow, 10-12 December 2010.

For more details of the Association and the conference, see: <http://www.bams.me.uk/>

The European Network for Avant-Garde and Modernism Studies (EAM) devotes itself to the study of the avant-garde and modernism in Europe within a global setting, throughout the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The network promotes interdisciplinary and intermedial research on experimental aesthetics and poetics.

The 2012 EAM conference on the theme 'Material Meanings', will be held at the University of Kent, England, 7-9 September 2012. This conference will investigate the avant-garde's reconfiguration of matter and materials in the quest to generate new meanings and effects. Its particular focus will be the manner in which different artistic disciplines adopt strategies, theories and techniques from each other, and how they translate, transform and integrate conceptions and modes of expression from other sign systems.

For further information, please email EAM2012@kent.ac.uk

The Australian Modernist Studies Network (AMS N) was established in July 2009 to support and coordinate research activity in modernist studies throughout Australasia.

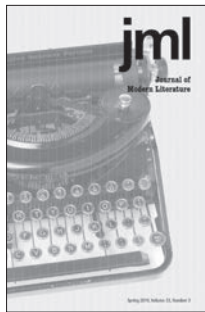

The AMS N seeks to engage academics, postgraduate students and those outside the academy who work in any of the various international denominations of modernism, and to facilitate the development of links between Australian and international associations active in this rapidly growing field.

The Network's website is now available at www.amsn.org.au, and contains information on Australasian modernist studies events, calls for papers, links to Australian and international modernist studies resources, and details of the research interests of the Network's membership.

Joining the Network is free and membership is open to all scholars working in modernist studies, whether in its Australasian or international contexts. We invite any interested individuals to visit the website to submit their details.

Journal for Early Modern Cultural Studies

EDITED BY THOMAS DIPIERO, DEVONEY LOOSER, ELIZABETH SPILLER AND DANIEL VITKUS

The Journal for Early Modern Cultural Studies, the official publication of the Group for Early Modern Cultural Studies, is an interdisciplinary forum for the study of the period from the late fifteenth to the late nineteenth centuries. The journal publishes articles and solicits book reviews that reflect various approaches to culture and speak to a broad range of issues, including questions of gender and identity, cross-cultural connections, investigations of race and ethnicity, and studies that connect culture to social class.

Textual Cultures: Text, Contexts, Interpretation

EDITED BY WAYNE STOREY AND EDWARD BURNS

Textual Cultures focuses on issues of textual editing, redefinitions of textuality, the history of the book, material culture, and the fusion of codicology with literary and musicological iconography.

eISSN 1933-7418 | pISSN 1559-2936

Film History: An International Journal

EDITED BY RICHARD KOSZARSKI

Film History focuses on the historical development of the motion picture in its social, technological, and economic contexts. Its areas of interest range from the technical and entrepreneurial innovations of early and pre-cinema experimenters through all aspects of the production, marketing, distribution, exhibition, and reception of commercial and non-commercial motion pictures.

eISSN 1553-3905 | pISSN 0892-2160

Transition: An International Review

EDITED BY TOMMIE SHELBY

Transition is an international review of politics, culture, and ethnicity. While other magazines routinely send journalists around the world, Transition invites the world to write back. Three times a year, its writers fill the magazine's pages with unusual dispatches, unforgettable memoirs, unorthodox polemics, unlikely conversations, and unsurpassed original fiction. Transition tells complicated stories with elegant prose and beautiful images.

Five Plays

ANTON CHEKHOV

Translated by MARINA BRODSKAYA
with an Introduction by TOBIAS WOLFF

"Brodskaya's translation allows us to discover Chekhovian precision and the impact of his strategic word-choices, together with the light these shine on the fabric of modern drama and communication. It is deeply attuned to the spirit of Chekhov's language and his compassionate observation of humans caught in the net of their own habits and blind spots, striving to stop, cause, or foresee the huge change that has already engulfed them."

Modernist Latitudes

Columbia University Press is proud to announce its new series "Modernist Latitudes." The series, which builds upon CUP's award-winning list in modernist studies, will be edited by Jessica Berman and Paul Saint-Amour. The series aims to capture the energy and ferment of modernist studies by continuing to open up the range of forms, locations, temporalities, and theoretical approaches encompassed by the field. It will publish scholarship that broadens our understanding of the canon while paying particular attention to the texts and contexts of Asia and the global South — those latitudes that have long been misrecognized as ancillary to the canonical modernisms of the global North. Those interested in submitting manuscripts should contact Philip Leventhal at pl2164@columbia.edu.
