
Modernist Studies Association

15th ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Everydayness and the Event

University of Sussex, Brighton, UK

29 August -1 September 2013

Message from the MSA President

This year the annual conference of the Modernist Studies Association returns to the UK. Since lead conference coordinator Sara Crangle unveiled the MSA 15 poster at Las Vegas last year, I have felt like one of those children peering through the gap in the fence, marveling at the massed barrels and the spires in the haze, pondering from a favorite perch what might happen next. The image powerfully evokes the worn surfaces of familiar things and the strangeness of impending ones, the co-presence of immanence and imminence. Its diagonals join the horizontal axis of the everyday to the vertical one of the event. One hundred years after the Armory Show in New York and a year shy of the centenary of the Archduke Ferdinand's assassination at Sarajevo, 2013 is just the year in which to think together about how the event and the everyday—as concepts but also as strains of experience—interrupt, undergird, and co-implicate one another. And where better for scholars of modernism to ruminate on Everydayness and the Event than at the University of Sussex, a stone's throw from Monk's House and Charleston and Farley Farm House and home to the Mass Observation Archive, the Centre for Modernist Studies, and so many valued colleagues in the field?

Preparations for this event have occupied its UK organisers just about every day for the last year and more. You'll find the names of those local organisers on subsequent pages of this programme; I'm confident I speak for the Association as a whole in extending them our heartfelt thanks. Here I can't resist singling out Sara Crangle, lead conference coordinator, for special recognition. Every delegate who attends MSA 15 is the beneficiary of her foresight, persistence, care, and resourcefulness.

The MSA Programme Committee, ably chaired by Victoria Rosner, has assembled a fantastic programme comprising 3 plenaries, 5 poster/demonstration sessions, 6 pre-conference workshops, 14 roundtables, 24 seminars, and 100 panels. The programme's considerable disciplinary variety owes much to the efforts of Carrie Preston, the Board's Chair for Interdisciplinary Approaches. We're indebted too, to MSA Webmaster Matt Huculak, who designed the conference website.

I'm pleased to report that we were able to award an unprecedented 40 travel grants to assist members in attending the conference. Having received a record 72 applications, we decided to prioritise graduate and postdoctoral students, first-time grant recipients, and those with little or no access to institutional support. Those who did not receive travel assistance this year are encouraged to apply again in future years.

This has been an eventful year for MSA governance. With the support of Bill Breichner, the Journals Editor at Johns Hopkins University Press, we have altered the editorial structure of Modernism/modernity. As of January 2015, the MSA office will serve as the journal's hub and will be responsible for two issues per year, with the other two annual issues and book reviews being managed by Lawrence Rainey's office at the University of York. Our search for the MSA Co-editor who will inherit the new structure is under way; we look forward to notifying you of the outcome this fall. Until the handoff, current MSA Co-editor Ann Ardis will continue to bring her commitment to innovation and editorial rigor to the journal.

Revisions to our bylaws, subsequently approved by the membership, redistribute the work of the Treasurer and the Membership and Elections Chair, with the latter being newly charged to recruit a diverse membership. Earlier this year, the MSA was signatory to an amicus curiae brief in an important US legal case having to do with copyright and educational fair use. And the Board voted unanimously to grant affiliate status to an esteemed UK organisation, the British Association for Modernist Studies (BAMS).

As of 1 September, David Chinitz will succeed me as President, with Rebecca Walkowitz advancing to First Vice President and Stephen Ross joining the Board as Second VP. We will also welcome a new Treasurer in Gayle Rogers. I'd like to express my gratitude to our out-bound Treasurer, Jesse Matz, and to Former President Susan Stanford Friedman, for their exemplary service to the Association. My hearty thanks go, too, to Karen Tiefenwerth, who recently retired after six years as MSA Budget Administrator.

Allow me to hoist a pint to what promises to be an unforgettable conference, truly one for the ages. And I'll count on seeing you at future gatherings, including MSA 16 in Pittsburgh (6-9 November 2014) and MSA 17 in Boston (19-22 November 2015)!

Paul K. Saint-Amour
MSA President

Message from the Conference Coordinator

On 29 August 1913, Pablo Picasso posted Gertrude Stein a note from Paris to Granada; its four sentences include: 'Paris is not too bad at the moment and we go out for car drives in the evening' and 'I am doing some work.' Perhaps surprisingly, this dull exchange is typical of the correspondence between these two monumental figures of modernism, whose lives, on close inspection, prove as eminently banal as they were eventful. Picasso's letter, of course, precedes the start date of MSA 15 by precisely one hundred years. In that same year, F.T. Marinetti railed against contemporary theatre for its 'waver[ing] between historical reconstructions...and photographic reproductions of our daily lives.' To no small degree, Marinetti's despised oscillation is the celebrated subject of our conference, 'Everydayness and the Event'.

In retrospect, the broadness of our theme may well be inadvertently indebted to a form of British pub names, which traditionally encompass two diametrically opposed but related nouns ('Huntsman and Hounds', 'Rose and Thistle', 'Punch and Judy'). That said, it's not difficult to find evidence of the collision between the grand and the minute in modernism. Too-obvious examples include Joyce's Homeric epic of daily life, or Kafka's hunger artist, who makes a well-advertised, public occasion of his fraught relationship with food. Our participants have interpreted our proffered topics of conversation as broadly as we had hoped: over the next four days, delegates will discuss everything from everyday animals to eventful parties. And the traditional concerns of modernism – gender, race, crisis, avant-gardism, philosophical self-reflexivity, temporality, to name just a few – have been inventively re-interpreted through our thematic lenses.

The images scattered throughout our programme are also emblematic of our theme. These photographs are taken from the Mass Observation archive, which began in 1937 with a view to recording the daily lives of British people; this documentation continues today, and is held at the University of Sussex. The founders of Mass Observation, anthropologist Tom Harrison and surrealist poet Charles Madge, invited photo-journalist Humphrey Spender to contribute to their project; Spender is now considered a pioneer of British documentary photography. Permission to use Spender's 1937-38 'Worktown' photographs in conference publications was generously provided by the Bolton Library and Museum Services; to see more of these images, please peruse their site at <http://boltonworktown.co.uk/>.

More information on Sussex's extensive modernist archives can be gleaned by two workshops on offer to delegates run by our dynamic manager of Special Collections. This is one of eight MSA 15 satellite events that speak to our regional modernist legacy. In addition to visiting the homes of Bloomsbury and British surrealism, conference participants can tour the UK's oldest cinema and the Brighton Gallery, site of the 1913-14 'Exhibition by the Camden Town Group'. For a taste of the way the modernist legacy remains active, delegates are invited to a pre-conference poetry event at the Hope Pub in Brighton, and have been offered an innovative phono-poetry event curated by our co-sponsoring institution, Queen Mary, University of London, at Brighton's Nightingale Theatre on Friday 30 August.

Over this past year, my colleagues on the MSA steering committee have acted as excellent guides in thinking through administrative and logistical concerns. Matt Huculak, MSA webmaster, has received a truly disconcerting numbers of emails revising the endless work-in-progress that is the conference website, remaining an efficient and delightful correspondent throughout. Paul Saint-Amour has offered an admirably considerate and considered approach to conference negotiations, and as head of this year's programme committee, Victoria Rosner has repeatedly, helpfully untangled the perplexing machinations inevitably associated with any major organisation. That praise must be extended to past conference organisers, among them, Beth Rosenberg, Cris Miller, and Stephen Ross, who have been exceedingly generous in advising me through this process. Modernists – undergraduates, post-graduates, and faculty alike – have enthusiastically agreed to act as volunteers. And Sam Cooper, my conference administrator, has without question made possible the coordination of this conference.

Most of all, we are indebted to our delegates. What a response to our call for papers! We are in regular correspondence with scholars from Asia, Australia, Europe, and the Middle East; even Canadians write us on occasion. We are so pleased that you have all chosen to come to Brighton, a city not as spectacular, but certainly every bit as delightfully seedy, as last year's conference site, Las Vegas. Bloomsbury aside, modernists associated with Brighton and East Sussex include Grahame Greene, Edward Carpenter, Ivy Compton-Burnett, Arthur Conan Doyle, Henry James, David Jones, as well as Pound and Yeats. And Brighton features as an idealised get-away in the imagination of Joyce's Leopold Bloom. Envisioning a better time for himself and Molly, Bloom thinks: 'Tour the south then. What about English watering places? Brighton, Margate. Piers by moonlight. Her voice floating out. Those lovely seaside girls.'

We sincerely hope you enjoy your visit to our English watering place. Be sure to say hello to the sea, and to visit one of countless sweet shops offering you a stick or ten of Brighton rock. And perhaps, also, keep an eye out at sunset for the flocks of starlings circling our own disappointed bridge: the much-loved, dramatically burnt-out West Pier of Brighton, a local, daily reminder of past eventfulness.

Sara Crangle,
On behalf of the regional organising team

Keynote Speakers

- Terry Eagleton, Lancaster University
- Griselda Pollock, University of Leeds

Keynote Round Table

- Gillian Beer, University of Cambridge
- Rachel Bowlby, University College London
- Ben Highmore, University of Sussex
- Gabriel Josipovici, University of Sussex
- Esther Leslie, Birkbeck, University of London
- Michael Sheringham, Oxford University

Terry Eagleton is currently Distinguished Professor of English Literature at Lancaster University; Professor of Cultural Theory at the National University of Ireland, and Distinguished Visiting Professor of English Literature at the University of Notre Dame. He has published more than forty books, including the indispensable Literary Theory: An Introduction (1983), The Ideology of the Aesthetic (1990), The Illusions of Postmodernism (1996), The Trouble with Strangers: A Study of Ethics (2008), Why Marx was Right (2011) and The Event of Literature (2012). Eagleton delivered the 2008 Terry Lectures at Yale University and the 2010 Edinburgh Gifford lecture, The God Debate. His work has been collected in The Eagleton Reader (1998) ed. Stephen Regan. His biting and brilliant criticism regularly appears in The Guardian, The London Review of Books and elsewhere.

Griselda Pollock is a Professor of the Social and Critical Histories of Art at the University of Leeds, and a world-renowned scholar of international feminist studies in the visual arts. She is the author, co-author and editor of numerous influential books and articles including Mary Cassatt (1980); Old Mistresses: Women, Art and Ideology (1981) (with Rozsika Parker); Vision and Difference: Femininity, Feminism, and Histories of Art (1987); Avant-Garde Gambits: Gender and the Colour of Art History (1993); Aesthetics. Politics. Ethics: Julia Kristeva 1966-96, (Special Issue parallax, no. 8, 1998); and Encounters in the Virtual Feminist Museum: Time, Space and the Archive (2007) and most recently, Concentrationary Cinema: Aesthetics as Political Resistance in Alain Resnais's Night and Fog (1955), (edited with Max Silverman) (2011). She has exhibited her artistic work in Leeds and London, and her video art work in Canada and Austria.

Professor Pollock will be speaking about Charlotte Salomon, an artist who died unknown and invisible in Auschwitz in 1943, having hidden away a vast artwork that has, since its first exhibition in 1961 attracted scholars of modernist, Jewish and feminist studies working in life narrative and autobiography. New evidence has come to light through a recent film that has radically destabilised both the autobiographical and the historical readings of Life? or Theatre? In this lecture, Professor Pollock will plot an analytical journey through one of the most extraordinary products of modernist culture on the edge of its and its author's destruction by fascism, leading performatively towards the audience's own encounter with the possible secret the work hides in plain view.

This lecture is generously sponsored by the Leo Baeck Institute London.

Gillian Beer was King Edward VII Professor of English Literature at Cambridge University and the President of Clare Hall College. Her numerous books include Darwin's Plots: Evolutionary

Narrative in Darwin, George Eliot and Nineteenth Century Fiction (which is now in a third edition), George Eliot (1986), Open Fields: Science in Cultural Encounter (1996), and a collection of essays on Woolf, Virginia Woolf: The Common Ground (1996). She has edited Darwin's The Origin of Species (1997) and Freud's The Wolfman and Other Case Histories (2002) and edited and introduced Woolf's The Waves and Between the Acts for Oxford University Press. She is a Fellow of the British Academy and of the Royal Society of Literature and was made a Dame in 1998. She has twice been a judge of the Booker Prize. Her most recent work has been on Lewis Carroll's Alice books.

Rachel Bowlby has written about the history of consumer culture as well as about modernist writing, psychoanalysis and classical literature. She is Lord Northcliffe Professor of Modern English Literature at University College London, and will be teaching in Comparative Literature at Princeton from September, 2013. Before UCL she taught at Sussex, Oxford, and York, and she has been a visiting professor at Cornell, Rutgers, Otago, and Paris 3 (the Sorbonne Nouvelle). Her books include Just Looking: Consumer Culture in Dreiser, Gissing and Zola (1985), Still Crazy After All These Years: Women, Writing and Psychoanalysis (1992), Shopping with Freud, and Freudian Mythologies: Greek Tragedies and Modern Identities (2007). Her extensive work on Virginia Woolf includes the classic Feminist Destinations (extended 1997) and editions of Woolf's work including Orlando (1992) and The Crowded Dance of Modern Life: Selected Essays (1993). Her newest book is A Child of One's Own (2013), about the changing narratives of parenthood in modern culture and literature.

Ben Highmore is a Professor of Cultural Studies at the University of Sussex. His current research interests centre around cultural feelings, domestic life and post-war

British art (New Brutalism). His books include Everyday Life and Cultural Theory (2001); Cityscapes: Cultural Readings in the Material and Symbolic City (2005); Michel de Certeau: Analysing Culture (2006); A Passion for Cultural Studies (2009); and Ordinary Lives: Studies in the Everyday (2011). He has published articles on a wide range of topics including Jacques Rancière, John Berger, Richard Hamilton, and food and multiculturalism. His current book projects are an account of New Brutalism in British art in the 1950s and The Great Indoors: An Intimate History of the British House to be published by Profile next year.

Gabriel Josipovici is a renowned modernist author and critic. He taught at the University of Sussex from 1963 until 1998, and was formerly Weidenfeld Professor of Comparative Literature at the University of Oxford. He has published numerous novels, volumes of short stories, and plays. In 2001 he published A Life, a biographical memoir of his mother, the translator and poet Sacha Rabinovitch. His critical books include The World and the Book: A Study of Modern Fiction (1971); The Lessons of Modernism and Other Essays (1977); The Book of God: A Response to the Bible (1988); On Trust: Art and the Temptations of Suspicion (1999), and What Ever Happened to Modernism? (2010) He is a frequent contributor to the Times Literary Supplement.

Esther Leslie is Professor in Political Aesthetics at Birkbeck, University of London. Her research interests include Marxist theories of aesthetics and culture, European literary and visual modernism, and the 'everyday.' Her publications include Walter Benjamin (2007); Synthetic Worlds: Nature, Art and the Chemical Industry (2005); Hollywood Flatlands: Animation, Critical Theory and the Avant-garde (2002) and Walter Benjamin, Overpowering Conformism (2000). Her translations include Georg Lukacs, A Defence of 'History and Class Consciousness' (2002) and Walter Benjamin: The Archives (2007). She is involved in editing the journals, Historical Materialism: Research in Critical Marxist Theory, Radical Philosophy, and Revolutionary History.

Michael Sheringham has been a Marshal Foch Professor of French Literature at the University of Oxford since 2004. He is also a Fellow at All Souls College, Oxford. Previously he taught at the University of Kent and at Royal Holloway, University of London. He has written extensively on Surrealism, on modern and contemporary French poetry, and on autobiography. He has published essays and articles on Beckett, Duras, Sartre, Genet, Barthes, Perec, Bonnefoy, Jaccottet, and many other authors. His publications include André Breton: a Bibliography (1971); Samuel Beckett: Molloy (1986) French Autobiography: Devices and Desires, Rousseau to Perec (1993) and Everyday Life: Theories and Practices from Surrealism to the Present (2006).

PRE-CONFERENCE POETRY READING

Joshua Clover is the author of two books of poetry (most recently, The Totality for Kids, University of California) and two of cultural history. His current work, poetic and theoretical, concerns crisis and transformation of the world-system, in its broadest and most local manifestations.

Catherine Wagner's most recent publication is Nervous Device (City Lights, 2012). Kenneth Goldsmith wrote of her work: 'Wagner is a great corrupter of poetry.' Rachel Galvin is the author of a collection of poems, Pulleys & Locomotion (Black Lawrence Press 2009), and a poetry chapbook, Zoetrope (Ediciones Chätaro 2006). Her new collection of poems, Lost Property Unit, was a finalist for the 2011 National Poetry Series and Alice James Books' 2011 Kinereth Gensler Award.

Hosted by the Hi Zero Poetry Reading Series & sponsored by the School of English, University of Sussex, and the Centre for Modernist Studies, University of Sussex.

MONK'S HOUSE – VISITS

Nestled in Rodmell, a village in the heart of rural Sussex, Monk's House is a tranquil 17th-century weather-boarded cottage inhabited by Leonard and the novelist Virginia Woolf from 1919 until Leonard's death in 1969.

Full of their favourite things, the house appears as if they just stepped out for a walk. The Woolfs bought Monk's House for the 'shape and fertility and wildness of the garden.' Today, the lovely cottage garden contains a mix of flowers, vegetables, orchards, lawns and ponds, as well as Virginia's well-preserved writing shed.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS WORKSHOPS, UNIVERSITY OF SUSSEX

The University of Sussex houses many prominent modernist archives; our collection includes Leonard Woolf's papers, many of Virginia Woolf's papers, and the Mass Observation Archive, as well as the work of Rudyard Kipling and Charles Madge. As Special Collections is on the move in the summer of 2013, we have made arrangements for surrogate copies of some of these holdings to be available to delegates in the university library, by arrangement. Additionally, we are offering workshops during the conference for delegates to look at some highlights from our original archival collections.

Special Collections Workshop #1: 1 pm, Thursday 29 August 2013

Special Collections Workshop #2: 10.30 am, Friday 30 August 2013

Both workshops will take place in the Open Learning Space, University of Sussex Library

(please see campus map on the back of programme)

BRITISH MODERNIST CINEMA – TOUR & SCREENING, DUKE OF YORK'S PICTUREHOUSE

Pioneers were making, producing, and marketing major films in Brighton and Hove as early as 1897 – among the earliest in the world. The Duke of York's opened in 1910 and is the UK's oldest and longest-running purpose-built cinema. Over its one hundred years The Duke of York's has gone from Edwardian Picture Palace to 'flea-pit' to leading independent cinema going through many stages that reflect the changing nature of cinema exhibition in this country. In celebration of this aspect of our regional history, MSA 15 is offering a tour of the Duke of York's cinema, followed by a screening of a 1938 film, 'Bank Holiday', which is centered on the British tradition whereby Londoners escape the city on long weekends to misbehave in seaside towns like Brighton.

This event is generously sponsored in full by the School of Media, Film, and Music at Sussex.

CHARLESTON, HOME OF BLOOMSBURY – TOURS

Charleston was the home and country meeting place for the Bloomsbury group. The interior was painted by the artists Duncan Grant and Vanessa Bell, and together with their collection forms a unique example of their decorative style. Situated near Lewes, in East Sussex (just 10 kilometres from the Sussex campus), the house and gardens are open to the public.

“PHONO-POETRY” – ARCHIVE OF THE NOW MEETS WAX CYLINDER RECORDING

On the evening of 30 August 2013, Queen Mary will host a poetry performance showcasing poets featured in ‘The Archive of the Now’. The Archive is a digital collection of current innovative text work produced in the UK. This event, specially curated for MSA15, brings digital late modernism back into material contact with early recording technology as poets from the Archive perform with their own voices recorded onto wax cylinders and replayed on phonographic equipment from the early twentieth century. Featuring Redell Olsen (Punk Faun: A Bar Rock Pastel and Secure Portable Space), Jeff Hilson (Bird Bird and In the Assarts), sound poet Holly Pester (Hoofs and Folkslop), with special treats from the Mass Observation Archive via Boris Jardine, and phonographic wonders from Aleksander Kolkowski.

Supported by the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, Queen Mary and the generous contributions of those who helped crowd-fund the project.

Friday 30 August 2013, 8 pm prompt start - please be seated by 7.50.

10 tickets are available at the registration desk for those who have not purchased this event in the conference registration package.

The Nightingale Theatre, central Brighton (29-30 Surrey Street)

FARLEY FARM HOUSE, HOME OF THE SURREALISTS – TOURS

Lee Miller (photographer, writer, muse, and model) and Roland Penrose (artist and writer) came to live in Farley Farm House in 1949 and for the thirty-five years that followed they built up a collection of contemporary art treasures, many of which were created by their friends and visitors including Pablo Picasso, Man Ray, Max Ernst, Paul Éluard and Joan Miró. The work of these artists and numerous others are exhibited in the house alongside those of Penrose and Miller, giving the visitor a fascinating look into the world of the Surrealists.

CAMDEN TOWN GROUP DISPLAY – BRIGHTON MUSEUM & ART GALLERY

The Royal Pavilion & Museums has recently received a permanent allocation of eight works by artists of the Camden Town Group, forming part of the collection assembled by Robert Bevan and his second wife Natalie Barclay. The new acquisition of paintings and drawings by Robert Polhill Bevan (1865-1925), Harold Gilman (1876-1919) and Spencer Frederick Gore (1878-1914) is being celebrated with a display on the South Balcony at Brighton Museum & Art Gallery. The museum held the seminal ‘Exhibition by the Camden Town Group and Others’ in 1913-14 – J.B. Manson and Wyndham Lewis wrote the catalogue. Additionally, the Brighton museum was the first institution to collect works by Robert P Bevan. Given this history, these important paintings and drawings are a significant contribution to the current holdings and displays of early modern British figurative art.

Exhibit runs from 18 June to 15 September, 2013

Admission is free to the public.

Brighton Museum & Art Gallery is located next to a major city landmark, the Royal Pavilion in central Brighton

NEW FROM STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Counter-Culture Colophon

Grove Press, the Evergreen Review, and the Incorporation of the Avant-Garde

LOREN GLASS

"I had such a good time reading Loren Glass's study of the Grove Press, I barely noticed that he had packed a whole education in the American reception of the European avant-garde into its pages. Brimming with as many colorful and brilliant personalities as it is with good ideas and cogent analyses, this book fills in a major gap in our knowledge of postwar American culture, and will appeal to anyone who has ever felt the lure of dangerously sexy ideas."

Stanford University

Writing Against Time

MICHAEL W. CLUNE

"This striking book is a combination of enormous ambition and economical exposition. Its questions are big and its answers provocative. Even better: we have the chance to see the world for a while through an enchanting mind. Thinking with Clune is sheer pleasure."

—Amy Hungerford,
Yale University

After 1945

Latency as Origin of the Present

HANS ULRICH GUMBRECHT

"This is a fascinating and important book—important because of the way it connects a certain postwar mood with literary and personal examples. I am familiar with a good deal of Gumbrecht's previous work, and as far as I know, this is the first time he has directly addressed the situation of Germany after the Second World War in such a way. The courage, and intellectual honesty, it has taken to write After 1945 are impressive indeed."

FORTHCOMING

The Mark of the Sacred

JEAN-PIERRE DUPUY

Translated by M. B. DeBevoise

"The Mark of the Sacred is one of those rare books that cannot simply be measured by academic standards, because they themselves set new standards—a book which, in an enlightened well-organized state, should be printed and freely distributed in all schools!"

—Slavoj Žižek

Cultural Memory in the Present

Requiem for the Ego

Freud and the Origins of Postmodernism

ALFRED I. TAUBER

"This is an important book in the philosophy of science, but it is also an important critique of the history of 20th-century philosophy and its relationship to psychology. The blurred lines are here clarified and the denial on the part of philosophy that it was and is in a dialogue with psychology is laid to rest for once and for all."

Novel: A Forum on Fiction

Nancy Armstrong, editor

Official journal of the Society for Novel Studies

Novel publishes essays concerned with the novel's role in engaging and shaping the world. To promote critical discourse on the novel, the journal publishes significant work on fiction and related areas of research and theory, such as the early American novel, eighteenth-century fiction, and postcolonial modernisms.

KEY TITLE

Journey Westward

Joyce, Dubliners and the Literary Revival

Frank Shovlin

Journey Westward suggests that James Joyce, like Yeats and his fellow Revivalists, was attracted to the west of Ireland as a place of authenticity and freedom. It shows how his acute historical sensibility is reflected in Dubliners, posing new questions about one of the most enduring collections of short stories ever written. The answers provided are a fusion of history and literary criticism, using close readings that balance techniques of realism and symbolism. The result is an original study that shines new light on Dubliners and Joyce's later masterpieces.

'A sparkingly written and unflaggingly enjoyable book, founded on a deep and wide-ranging knowledge of Joyce and his times.'
Bernard O'Donoghue, Wadham College, Oxford

'Who would think that a new study of James Joyce's first book could break fresh ground? Frank Shovlin has done it. His riveting book on Dubliners shows that Joyce began at his best. After the power and beauty of his short stories, Joyce had nowhere to go except into complexity and length.'

THE GRASP THAT REACHES BEYOND THE GRAVE

The Ancestral Call in Black Women's Texts

Venetria K. Patton

Explores black women writers' treatment of the ancestor figure.

"Patton's book examines systematically the living role of the elder and the ancestor in literary works by African American women. Bringing these roles and relationships into critical literary discourse is revelatory and real. Patton's buttressing sources include not only those of the literary scholar, but also well-known works by scholars of African and African American art and religion. This is a wonderful and long overdue contribution."

— Joanne M. Braxton, Director, Middle Passage Project, College of William and Mary

OF INTEREST

MEDIUMISM

A Philosophical Reconstruction of Modernism for Existential Learning

René V. Arcilla

Explores the contemporary pedagogical significance of modernism.

"Arcilla presents a rich conceptual analysis of existentialist thought as it is reflected in aesthetic, cultural, and educational contexts ... his short book offers readers a mini-course in liberal education."

— CHOICE

Hansen offers more than a few intriguing and resonant insights."

— James Joyce Quarterly

"... a complex reading of how Ireland's political history has informed the tradition of Irish gothic fiction and how that tradition then informed Irish modernist texts ... Using Hegelian dialectics, postcolonial hybridity, and abject maternal identity, Hansen chronicles how characters, and sometimes authors, attempt to escape confinement and gain autonomy."

— CHOICE

THE UNCONCEPT

The Freudian Uncanny in Late-Twentieth-Century Theory

Anneleen Masschelein

Explores the conceptualization of the Freudian uncanny in various late-twentieth-century theoretical and critical discourses.

"The Unconcept is ambitious, meticulously researched, and, much like the Freudian term it examines, intensely self-conscious ... [it] delivers a careful diachronic analysis of a haunting theoretical concept, mapping its century-long journey to the center of our attention."

— IMPACT

QUEER TIMES, QUEER BECOMINGS

E. L. McCallum and Mikko Tuhkanen, editors

Queer theory essays on time and becoming in the fields of literature, philosophy, film, and performance.

"... McCallum and Tuhkanen do an impressive job of weaving together Lacanian psychoanalysis, Foucault's concepts of biopolitics/biopower, Deleuze's vitalist paradigms, and Nietzsche's untimeliness ... Highly recommended."

— CHOICE

2009 GRADIVA AWARD, THEORETICAL CATEGORY, PRESENTED BY THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF PSYCHOANALYSIS

UNSPEAKABLE SECRETS AND THE PSYCHOANALYSIS OF CULTURE

Esther Rashkin

Explores the radical political potential of close reading to make the case for a new and invigorated psychoanalytic cultural studies.

"... Rashkin's intricate, meticulous, and often astounding close readings are the book's argument ... Rashkin's book is both the survival of history in the form of the secret and the survival of a certain thinking of psychoanalysis as itself historical—not merely reacting to or commenting on historical occurrences but creating new histories."

— Comparative Literature Studies

"... [a] bold and entertaining study ... Rashkin makes a striking and memorable argument for utilizing the tools of psychoanalytic methodology, that have become unfashionable in some cultural studies circles, to reveal the unspoken horrors of atrocity, veiled anti-Semitism, and the guilty secrets of national history that lay beneath the surface of a range of cultural products."

— Nineteenth-Century French Studies

"This is fascinating work. Esther Rashkin makes an impassioned case for an end to the marginalization of psychoanalysis within cultural studies ... Thought-provoking in both its content and its practice, this is truly a pleasure to read."

— French Studies

MATERIALIZING QUEER DESIRE

Oscar Wilde to Andy Warhol

Elisa Glick

Uses iconic dandy and queer figures to explore relationships between homosexuality, modernism, and modernity.

"... [a] tantalizing, informative, erudite and resourceful book ... Materializing Queer Desire deserves to be read widely and seriously. Its ideas will prove illuminating tools for future critical inquiries in the many corners of GLBT cultural scholarship, and Glick is to be congratulated for such an important first book."

— Gay & Lesbian Review

TERROR AND IRISH MODERNISM

The Gothic Tradition from Burke to Beckett

Jim Hansen

Presents a new genealogy and synoptic overview of modern Irish fiction.

"Jim Hansen's Terror and Irish Modernism: The Gothic Tradition from Burke to Beckett displays boldness and breadth. It confidently ranges over the Irish Gothic tradition from the eighteenth century to the fiction of Samuel Beckett ...

PERSEPHONE BOOKS

IN BLOOMSBURY

'As an ambassador for modernism and feminism, Persephone Books fosters our understanding of the twentieth-century arts as they were – and continue to be – "attached to life at all four corners" (Woolf, A Room of One's Own)... Academic discourse about modernism, however insightful, speaks largely to itself; museum exhibits, however richly curated, confine modern art to frames and pedestals. But the modernism of Persephone Books – the original literary texts, the signature grey books, the sustained dialogue between art and life – circulates widely, taking its place in the everyday life that defines the publisher's feminist ethos.' 'Making it New: Persephone Books and the Modernist Project' Urmila Seshagiri MFS Modern Fiction Studies Summer 2013.

Persephone Books has been publishing its intelligent, thought-provoking and beautifully written reprints of (mostly) mid C20th titles written (mostly) by women since 1999 and now has 102 titles in print. The first was William – an Englishman (1919), the crucial WWI novel by Cicely Hamilton, and the most recent is The Exiles Return (1958) by Elisabeth de Waal, about Vienna after the war. Please visit us from 10am–6pm on weekdays or 12–5pm on Saturdays, go online at www.persephonebooks.co.uk, email sales@persephonebooks.co.uk or ring 0207 242 9292 to ask for our catalogue and biannually magazine. Also, do look at our website to find a daily Post, a fortnightly Letter and a monthly Forum. Persephone books cost £12 or three for £30 plus £2 postage (UK) or £5 (overseas).
