Message from the MSA President

So, here we are in Amsterdam, a city of modernist memories, home of De Stijl, the Amsterdam school, and a rich legacy of modernist innovation, particularly in architecture and design. We feel welcomed by the Beurs van Berlage in the shadow of the magnificent Centraal Station. In this context, we embrace the chance to consider Modernism Today. The conference program offers abundant opportunities, with its 109 panels, 24 roundtables, 20 seminars, and 7 digital exhibitions from many interdisciplinary approaches. We're also excited about the conference's partnership with several local institutions, the European Union, and especially the Stedelijk Museum. I hope to see you at the event there Friday evening, or at one of the other activities arranged for us in the city.

Preparations for this conference have occupied the organizers for many days and hours over the past year and more. The effort that goes into putting on a conference of this size and complexity is prodigious—those who have done it will know, and those who haven't will rightly guess. You'll see the names of all the local committee further on in this program, but we are particularly grateful to Rudolph Glitz, who took on the role of leadership. Every MSA member who attends this year owes him a nod of thanks. MSA Program Chair, Lisi Schoenbach, now finishing her final year of service in this position, also spent untold hours shepherding the conference selection process and helping to shape the program. We are endlessly grateful for her work on this and the past several conferences. Please thank her when you see her! Thanks also go to the other members of the program committee who helped to read and select the seminars and panels you see listed here.

As you'll have noted, this year we adopted a new conference technology program, Ex Ordo. Given the shorter year from last conference to this one, we set ourselves a difficult task, which was not without some glitches. But we feel confident the change was worthwhile and hope it will serve us in the years to come. We could not have gotten here without our able MSA webmaster, Alex Christie, who offered wise council and support at countless junctures. If you have received messages from MSA, consulted our website, or looked at the conference page, that is thanks to Alex. We have also developed a new information sheet, "How the MSA Works," soon to be unveiled on our website.

MSA awarded 56 conference travel grants this year worth a record setting $18,000. We also awarded $8,000 in research travel funding to 9 recipients, particularly those in early career stages. The Board is pleased to be able to offer this support to our members and regrets not being able to fund all worthy applicants. Please reapply!

It is time to say goodbye to Scott Klein, who worked hard as Interdisciplinary Chair to increase conference participation across the disciplines, and to our Membership and Elections Chair, María del Pilar Blanco, who has brought many able officers into our midst. Past President Stephen Ross also steps away from his many years of service to MSA. We wish them – and Lisi – a fond farewell and offer a round of applause for their service. The MSA couldn't exist without the accomplished work of these MSA officers. Working with them has been one of the real pleasures of serving on the Board over the past few years.

I want to call your attention to the growing Print Plus Platform of the MSA's flagship journal, Modernism/Modernity. As Debra Rae Cohen's recent editor's column pointed out, this platform has ramped up in this past year and is bringing out much excellent, peer-reviewed scholarship, as well as blogs and other commentaries. The platform adds immeasurably to our print journal and we are grateful to editors, Debra Rae and Chris Bush, and all those working on both the print and digital parts of the journal for their ongoing work. Check it out!

At the end of the present conference, Laura Winkiel, will step up to become the next MSA President. She has exceptional people following her up the presidential ladder: Celia Marshik will fill Laura's current position as First Vice President, and Matthew Hart will take Celia's place as Second VP. The board also welcomes Rebecca Walsh as the new Program Chair and Erin Templeton as Membership and Elections Chair. I leave office knowing the MSA is in excellent hands.

Here's to a memorable conference! I look forward to seeing you at one of the events or the business lunch (please come say hello). I'll also hope to see you at the next MSA conference in Columbus (November 8-11, 2018) and the following year in Toronto (October 17-20, 2019). In the meanwhile, please enjoy!

Jessica Berman, MSA President

Wednesday Evening

Modernism

Performed

For our pre-conference drinks and event, those of you who are already in Amsterdam on Wednesday are warmly invited to Amsterdam Noord, the up-and-coming and artist-favored part of town. From 7.30 pm, we are meeting at Sexyland, a venue near the Amsterdam wharf that has a bar and hosts a vast variety of independent projects with something of an underground vibe. “Modernism Performed” will begin at 8 pm and feature a modernism-inspired, live on-screen text-duet by Mia You (a poet and participating academic) and Sophie Fetokakis (another poet-academic currently located in Cyprus), a modernist musical intermezzo, and then a sample experience of the Amsterdam-based Waywords and Meansigns project, which, since 2014, has been dedicated to setting Joyce’s Finnegan’s Wake to music.

MSA 19 - Amsterdam

How to get there

This is easy: if you are standing in front of the station, at one of the city centre exits (looking towards the Beurs, our conference venue, in the distance), turn around and walk through the station and then through its back exit, until you face the big body of water called the IJ. From there, on your left, you can see several ferry shuttles (free of charge). Find the NDSM ferry (usually on your far left; look for those letters or ask someone) and take it to the NDSM wharf. Stepping off the ferry, look right and you should see Sexyland. Check the ferry schedule and plan your return. Then just enter Sexyland and join the fun.

How to get in

Print out this page (including our logo) and show it at the entrance. Or show it on your mobile phone.

Permanent Daytime Exhibition

Modernism: in Print: Dutch Graphic Design 1917-2017

This exhibition of modernist prints with an emphasis on the Netherlands comes to you by courtesy of the Bijzondere Collecties, one of the museums with ties to the University of Amsterdam. You can stroll through the exhibition at any time during its opening hours. So if you need a break between our panel sessions and crave a short walk and some soothingly angular exhibits – but also if you are on the lookout for research objects or fresh motifs for book or journal covers – don't forget to consider this convenient opportunity.

Opening Hours Modernism: in Print

Thursday and Friday: 9:30-17:00

Saturday and Sunday: 13:00-17:00

How to get there

Again, this is easy: if you leave our conference venue, just turn left and go down the street, always straight and staying on the left side until, after crossing the Dam and continuing near a canal, you will find the Bijzondere Collecties (it's one of the houses on your left, right next to the Allard Pearson museum). The address is Oude Turfmarkt 129.

How to get in

If you show your conference name badge at the entrance, you will get free access to the exhibition.

Daytime activity:

Canal Cruise

In your conference pack you will find a ticket voucher that you can use to take a 1-hour regular cruise (roundtrip) on any boat by the Rederij Kooij. During the cruise, you'll hear explanations about various sights you are passing. These explanations do not strike us as particularly reliable, but at least they are available in 10 different languages, including Dutch, English, German, French and Spanish.

How to get there

There are docking points at different places in the city where boats leave frequently at regular intervals, but the most convenient one for you will be the one in the photograph. It is located halfway to the Bijzondere Collecties. To get there, again, you just turn left when coming out of the Beurs (our venue) and walk straight ahead, staying on the left side until you see the ticket shack.

How to get in

Hand over the voucher in your conference pack.

Friday evening event (alternative 1)

Versal Poetry Reading

One of our Friday evening events will be introducing Versal 12, the literary & arts journal out of Amsterdam, with readings from Versal editor, Anna Arov, contributors Jane Lewty and Jing-Jing Lee, and local poet Nadia de Vries. Versal 12 features voices and images from 15 countries, connected through diverse interpretations of the theme “migrations” in a limited edition offset print. The issue brings together the work of the writers, artists, performers, and thinkers who have shared their craft on our Amsterdam stage, as well as the prose, poetry, and art of writers and artists from around the globe, including Berlin, Dubai, Manchester, San Francisco, and Seoul.

Jane Lewty is the author of two poetry collections: Bravura Cool (1913 Press: 2013) winner of the 1913 First Book Prize in 2011, and In One Form To Find Another (Cleveland State University Poetry Center: 2017) selected as the winner of the CSU Open Book Competition in 2016. She has co-edited two essay collections: Broadcasting Modernism (University Press of Florida: 2010) and Pornotopias: Image, Desire, Apocalypse (Litteraria Pragensia: 2009).

Jing-Jing Lee is the author of the novel If I Could Tell You. Her poems have been published in Ceriph, Poetry Quarterly, Quarterly Literary Review Singapore, and Moving Words 2011: A Poetry Anthology. Jing moved to Europe in her early 20s and started to pursue writing full-time. In 2011, she gained a Masters of Studies in Creative Writing from the University of Oxford. She now lives in Amsterdam with her husband and is working on her second book of fiction. When she's not working on her novel-in-progress or reading (or taking photographs), she can be found here and on twitter.

Nadia de Vries is the author of three poetry collections, and the curator of Sisternhood (2016). She works at the University of Amsterdam, where she researches the aestheticization of death in web-based cultures.

Anna Arov is a Russian/Canadian poet and artist living in Amsterdam, where she is an editor for the literary journal Versal and curator of the live journal VERSO /. In addition to that, she teaches writing at the Royal Academy of Art in The Hague.

How to get there

This event takes place in a gorgeous room at the University Library on Koningsplein. The easiest (and almost fastest way to get there is, as often, to turn left after leaving our venue and walk South, on the left side of the road, past the Canal Cruise shack and the Bijzonderen Collecties until you arrive on a square, or rather crossing, full of traffic and trams, marked by a red clock tower of sorts (called De Munt in case you need to ask). There you cross the street walking towards said clock tower and walk past it, leaving it on your left. You follow the street (along the right side of a canal) which bends slightly to the right as you walk. Once you reach the next square, the Koningsplein, you have reached your destination, the UB (Universiteitsbibliotheek). The address is Singel 425. Starting time: 8 pm.

Friday evening event (alternative 2)

Stedelijk Museum Tours

The Stedelijk Museum Amsterdam, one of the foremost museal institutions in a city where the competition is steep, is supporting MSA 19 by opening its doors to all participants who registered before coming over. But “opening its doors” is understating it. They are not only opening its doors, they are showing us around as well and highlighting for us their current modernist and/or modernism-related exhibitions. After a small reception and a few introductory words by the museum’s Manager for Education, Interpretation and Publications, Margriet Schavemaker, expert tour guides will take us around, among them some of the curators of the current exhibitions. There will be two rounds of tours, so latecomers still have a shot at one. For the various exhibitions you’ll see, check out the website of the Stedelijk.

How to get there

From our venue you can take the tram or walk, which might take a little and is only recommended if you can navigate by way of phone or map. Having said that, the Stedelijk is very close to the Rijksmuseum and every Dutch person can point you in the right direction. If you choose to take the tram, take number 24 across the street from the Beurs (in the opposite direction of Centraal Station).

Get out after a few stops, at Weteringcircuit. From there you can walk or take tram 7 or 10 to Spiegelgracht (ask almost anyone for the direction). Once at Spiegelgracht, cross the street, walk through the Rijksmuseum to the Museumplein, and you’ll see the Stedelijk across the lawn on your right. It’s popular nickname is the bath tub because it looks like one.

How to get in

There will be a registration desk at the entrance, where you can register and pick up a drink token for the small reception. Starting time: 7:30 pm.

Our Keynote Speakers

Boris Groys is a Global Distinguished Professor of Russian and Slavic Studies at New York University, Senior Research Fellow at the Karlsruhe University of Arts and Design, and professor of philosophy at The European Graduate School. Dr. Groys is an internationally renowned expert on Soviet-era art and literature, principally the Russian avant-garde, and his research interests include modern Russian philosophy and French poststructuralism. His latest publication entitled In the Flow (2016) reverses Walter Benjamin's assertion that mechanical reproduction creates objects without aura, proposing that in the digital era production generates aura without objects. Dr. Groys' works also include On the New (2014), Art Power (2013), and Boris Groys: Going Public (2010).

Paula Rabinowitz is a professor of English at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Rabinowitz's research explores the intersectionality between painting, cinema, space, photography, and literature in the production of nineteenth-century and twentieth-century American social history. In particular, her explorations address modernism in American women's art and literature. Her books include co-winner of the 2015 DeLong Book History Book Prize American Pulp: How Paperbacks Brought Modernism to Main Street (2014), Black and White and Noir: America's Pulp Modernism (2002), and Labor and Desire: Women's Revolutionary Fiction in Depression America (2000).

Siegfried Zielinski is both a professor of media archaeology and techno-aesthetics and the Michel Foucault Chair at The European Graduate School, as well as the chair of media theory at the Institute for Time Based Media at the Berlin University of Arts. Dr. Zielinski is currently working on a five-volume book series Variantology – Deep Time Relations of Arts, Sciences and Technologies, and his published works of more than 150 essays and a dozen books include [...After the Media] (2013), and Audiovisions – Cinema and Television as Entr'actes in History, an investigation of the historical changes in audiovisual media, published by Amsterdam University Press in 1999.

NOVEL

A FORUM ON FICTION

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE SOCIETY FOR NOVEL STUDIES

Novel is a peer-reviewed journal devoted to the best new criticism and theory in novel studies. The journal took up this mission in the days of formalism and has responded to the innovative moments in the field during the half century since—including ideology critique, feminist and critical race theory, poststructuralism, cultural studies, and New Historicism—by publishing the most engaging new work on the novel. As globalization and crises in biopolitics and the environment rapidly increase, and as models of affect theory multiply, the novel and how we read it are undergoing a sea change. Novel is especially interested in theory and scholarship that address these changes in terms of their formal, historical, political, and/or epistemological significance.
